Passion Project: Ethan Maiorini Java 8.0
WhereIsMyComic

WhereIsMyComic is an interactive list of the books I currently own and where they are stored.The app will start with a welcome screen where you can search for a Marvel character and it will give a list of the books that they are the main character of, a picture of them and also a brief bio as well. You can choose from that list and it will give you the books that I own from that series. If you click on the book it will show you the cover and give you a few details (publication date, etc). And also where it is currently stored,

So if my daughter asks to see a specific comic I own I can go to the app. Search for the character and the book and then go get it to show her. It would be helpful if I was to start reading a series I could start from where I stopped collecting and not from some random point. In the future it may help me purchase issues for runs that I do not have to complete a set.

I will use Spring, Java, SQL DB and Angular, as well as Marvel's api.
